FIELD CARE INSTRUCTIONS

Once the body has cooled off,

GET IT COLD OR FROZEN ASAP!

Your field care will directly effect the quality of your mount!

To avoid spoilage, treat the skins as carefully as you treat the meat!

BIRDS

Great care must be taken to protect the feathers. Birds with broken wings can still be mounted. Wash or wipe off any blood and tuck the head under the wing to protect the neck and head. Place in plastic bag after bird has cooled and freeze promptly.

DO NOT GUT THE BIRD! Even Turkeys

FISH

Never gut the fish. Keep the entire fish on ice or frozen. To freeze, wrap fish in a wet towel or wet newspaper and place in a plastic bag. Freeze promptly.

SMALL ANIMALS

All animals the size of coyotes and smaller should be frozen whole. Do not gut or try to skin. Allow to cool, place in a plastic bag. Freeze promptly.

DEER & GAMEHEADS

Never cut the throat! Bleeding will not make a difference in the quality of the meat, and you will harm the cape! It is not necessary with a proper field dress. You may leave the entire back hide attached. Let us cut off what we don't need. Better too much than not enough! Place head with horns attached in a plastic bag and freeze promptly.

ANTELOPE: Be very careful not to get excess blood on fur as the hair is tubular and blood is very difficult to remove once it has gotten in the hair shafts.

NEVER ALLOW YOUR TROPHY TO GET WARM OR HOT!

Always cut from the inside of the skin outward to avoid cutting hairs

The better you take care of your animal in the field, the better the mount.
